

THE STRONGEST MAN IN THE WORLD

AN ORIGINAL SONG BY ZACHARY STEVENSON

He was the strongest man in the world
Legs of steel and heart of gold
He was the strongest man in the world
And she came unfurled

He was the all-American
Made of muscles and perfect chin
He was the all-American
So masculine

But you were another hid undercover
The lights and the shutters never saw you
The crowds and drummers echoed like thunder
Under the red white and blue
They never knew you

Running faster than your demons
Over hurdles and regrets
But you're so out of breath
Racing yourself
With one last record to set

It was the strongest man in the world
Dressed in dresses and wearing pearls
It took the strongest man in the world
To stand up and be a girl
